'The band's aptitude for instrumental colour, timbre, balance and internal dynamics is if anything sharper than ever... The playing's seriously on fire, the arrangements blaze, the singing is uniformly strong and entirely committed - this really has got to be the band's finest hour on record to date.'

David Kidman for NetRhythms, reviewing 'Zama Zama...try your luck...'

'...riveting: the howling pipes, ululating fiddle and crashing keyboards are as darkly magnificent as anything the Battlefield Band has ever recorded'

froots, reviewing 'Zama Zama...try your luck...'

'...I suggest they are the most relevant composers of Celtic music today... This is essential listening.'

Bluesbunny, reviewing 'Zama Zama...try your luck...'

'...one of the great institutions of the Scottish music scene'

BBC Music Review, reviewing 'Zama Zama...try your luck...'

'...Scotland's flagship folk band...'

froots, reviewing 'Zama Zama...try your luck...'

'...inspired fusion of ancient and modern Scottish traditional music...'

folkwords, reviewing 'Zama Zama...try your luck...'

'...fiery instrumentals, plaintive ballads and social history... a fabulous album, with the whole band at the top of their game'

Zeitgeist Review, reviewing 'Zama Zama...try your luck...'
